Pendragon is a global macro hedge fund focused on finding undervalued assets. The Fund begins with a top down view of the global economy, followed by in-depth fundamental research at the industry and company specific level. Pendragon looks for opportunities around the world where other investors start to feel uncomfortable.

MONTHLY REVIEW

With regards to fundamentals, the global economy continued to show signs of expansion, companies continued to report strong earnings growth, and major central banks (Japan and the ECB) continued their expansionary monetary policies. In the United States, tax cuts and deregulation were offset by trade concerns and the Federal Reserve raising rates as well as contracting its balance sheet. The high degree of uncertainty created by the President's continual tweets has created an environment where no leadership exists in the stock market. As we move through the year, we expect the noise created by Washington to die down as investors finally recognize that President Trump's bark is much bigger than his bite. Until that time, we continue with the strategy of reducing exposure and increasing diversification. Our risk model continues to point to an allocation of stocks over bonds. However, one cannot rule out the fact that a policy mistake by either the Federal Reserve or the White House has a significant non-zero probability of occurring. Thus, some caution is warranted.
